Important Information Regarding Your Tax Certificate

No IRD Number provided

From 1 April 2020, if you haven't provided us with your IRD number, the Inland Revenue requires us to deduct Resident Withholding Tax RWT at 45% from any interest earned. Please contact us if you have not provided your IRD number.

The IRD uses the IRD number provided to allocate interest and RWT credits to the myIR account of the account owner(s). If you have not provided us with your IRD number, the amount of interest and RWT credits included on this certificate will not match the amount in your myIR account.

Joint accounts

From 1 April 2020 interest earned and RWT withheld on bank accounts will be reported to the IRD on a monthly basis. Where a bank account has joint owners, the details of each owner (where available) will also be communicated to the IRD along with the interest and RWT withheld. The IRD will allocate the interest income and RWT credits across the IRD numbers of each joint owner. If a joint owner's IRD number is not held by ASB, interest income and RWT credits will only be allocated to the owner(s) who has provided an IRD number.

The amount of interest earned and tax withheld that has been recorded in the myIR account of each account holder for the tax year ended 31 March will total the amount in this certificate. The amount of interest income and RWT credits included in your myIR account with the IRD will be different to the amounts included in this certificate if you have owned the account jointly at any point throughout the year, as not all income may have been allocated to you by the IRD.
